The product that I feel is needed because of the raised in fuel prices would be selling fire wood and coal. I feel that people are starting to switch their heating to other sources fuel. Selling fire wood and coal would keep me very buisy in the winter months. At summertime I could sell wood to dealers in the citys for people to burn in there fire places. And get more piled up for next winter. I will need just a couple of employees in the summer time, but I will need more employees in the winter because there more deliveries to be made. I will pay my employees the eleist amount and if they work real hard I will give them more money. I will a dvertise my business on the raideo so people will know were to find me. I will need chain saws to cut the wood, I will need dump trucks to deliver the wooden coal and a tractor to pull the wood out of the woods and load the coal in the trucks. The time I spend on a job depends on the amount of land I'm cutting on. I will cut tree tops on land that has already been loged.
